

DOCUMENT RESUME

ED 172 600

HE 011 320

AUTHOR Stauffer, Thomas M.
TITLE Guide to American Higher Education Policy-Making.
PUB DATE [79]
NOTE 17p.
EDRS PRICE MF01/PC01 Plus Postage.
DESCRIPTORS Educational Legislation; *Educational Policy;
Educational Status Comparison; Federal Government;
Federal Legislation; *Government Role; *Higher Education; Institutional Role; *Policy Formation;
Professional Associations; *Public Policy; Resource
Guides; State Government

ABSTRACT

A guide, designed especially for non-American educators, presents information to promote understanding of the U.S. policy-making process in higher education. Levels for policy analysis concern individuals, institutions, groups of institutions, state and local levels, national level, transnational level, and comparison of countries. Representative policy issues can be viewed from the perspective of institutions, state governments, national governments, and transnational levels. For each of these levels of analysis, issues and types of agencies and concerned parties are listed. Institutions are listed under the following categories: U.S. agencies, state and regional agencies, associations, university and research centers, unions, international organizations, special study groups, and other organizations. U.S. legislation pertaining to higher education is also listed. Background reading materials are provided for the following areas: institutional, state policy, national policy, transnational, periodicals, bibliographies, data sources, and special reports. (SW)

* Reproductions supplied by EDRS are the best that can be made * * from the original document. *

THIS DOCUMENT HAS BEEN REPRO-DUCED EXACTLY AS RECEIVED FROM THE PERSON OR ORGANIZATION ORIGIN-
ATING IT. POINTS OF VIEW OR OPINIONS
STATED DO NOT NECESSARILY REPRESENT
OFFICIAL NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF EDUCATION POSITION OR POLICY

Guide to American Higher Education Policy-Making

TO THE EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES
INFORMATION CENTER (ERIC) AND USERS OF THE ERIC SYSTEM

ED172600

American higher education in the 1978-79 academic year is a $55 billion enterprise, representing 3 percent of the U.S. Gross National Product, serving over 11 million students, 4 million of them part-time, in over 3100 non-profit, accredited colleges and universities recognized by the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation. Over one million professionals are employed in the "industry," 800,000 as faculty members. Since 1960, growth has been characteristic; in 1960, $6.7 billion (non-adjusted) were expended in the 2000 then existing non-profit institutions in which 300,000 faculty members were employed. From 1960 to 1975, higher education's share of the nation's overall education budget increased from 27 to 37 percent. Demographic growth is now leveling off in anticipation of a projected modest decline in student numbers in the 1980's.¹

The scale and complexity of the process of policy development in American higher education is normally difficult for even close observers to understand fully. Lacking anything truly comparable to a ministry of education, typical of most other nations, the centers of decision-making power in U.S. higher education are widely dispersed -- even enactment of legislation proposing a U.S. Department of Education would not amount to formation of a body functionally comparable to a ministry of education. The political decision-making process typical in the United States is also evident in higher education: a non-linear, multi-faceted, complex feedback loop process.

Moreover, the nature of the process varies with the issue and the level at which that issue is addressed: local, state, national, and so on. Given agencies, institutions, and groups may or may not influence a policy outcome, depending upon the issue and level of address. With knowledge of the level and issue area, the policy-making process is predictable to a degree.

For a variety of reasons, policy and social scientists have paid only modest attention to the process of decision-making in American higher education. Research is inadequate, and much of the research that is done relates to policies or issues rather than the process. Bureaucrats, coordinators, and managers do much of this short-range work, and scholarship on higher education, in spite of some encouraging signs, tends to be thin in the United States, often isolated in study centers rather than located within mainstream academic departments.

Foreign educators, for these reasons, as well as cultural barriers, are frequently mystified by what they learn about the American higher education policy-making process. Foreign visitors to the principal higher education associations, most of which are based in Washington, D.C., have difficulty setting aside European or Third World models of postsecondary education, notably the essential involvement of education ministries, when discussing the U.S. system. This article is a guide for understanding the U.S. policy-making process in higher education, designed especially for non-American educators.

The framework below is reductionist in that levels of analysis, policy issues, and actors are listed unidimensionally. Further, the framework is heuristic in that it can be used as a checklist when examining various issue areas. Case studies or decision models could have been used as alternatives to the framework here, although book length studies would be required to explore the necessary cases and model-building would require complex development.³ Thus, the framework here is only a place to start in organizing research on the policy-making process. The reading list at the end of the article is both a bibliographic reference and a demonstration of some important gaps in the literature.⁴

I. LEVELS OF ANALYSIS

A. Individuals: students, faculty members, administrators, trustees, parents, alumni, external constituencies including legislators and local and state officials, benefactors, intellectuals, the opinion-making public, journalists, and government, foundation, and association executives.

B. Institutions: colleges and universities (also their sub-divisions) and other vendors of postsecondary education, including proprietary and non-proprietary institutions.

C. Groups of institutions: consortia (usually regional) or classes of institutions including doctoral-granting research universities, comprehensive institutions, liberal arts colleges, two-year institutions, and professional schools.

D. State and local: individual and institutional membership organizations, state coordinating commissions, state legislatures and governments, and local governments.

E. National: individual and institutional membership associations, the Federal government, foundations, the media, educational enterprises in the private sector, and academic contacts.

F. Transnational: professional and institutional associations, international organizations, bi-lateral and multi-lateral contacts, and world-wide academic communication channels.

G. Comparative: United States and Western nations including Japan, Communist, bloc countries, developing countries, and relatively undeveloped countries/territories.

II. REPRESENTATIVE POLICY ISSUES

A. Institutional: governance; policy development; constituency relationships; public and community relationships and practices; personnel and legal matters; prestige; unionization; curricular directions; evaluation procedures; institutional renewal; interdepartmental and inter-institutional relationships; financing; planning and budgeting; leadership; research; academic freedom; ethics; research; function (elitism versus egalitarianism and pragmatism versus purism); morale; professionalism; bureaucracy; recognition and status; and personnel and professional directions of faculty members, administrators, and students.

B. State: influence and roles of statewide boards and commissions; relationships with governors, legislatures, benefactors, and the private sector; autonomy for higher education; accountability; finance; lobbying; regulations and laws; public-independent institutional relationships; state policies; statutory stipulations; student aid; and state taxation and tuition policies.

C. National: educational opportunity; finance; accountability; regulations and laws; planning; educational delivery systems; interest groups; protection of higher education; civil rights; church-state relationships; student consumerism, legal matters and due process; student, institutional, and research aid; institutional autonomy; affirmative action; lobbying; innovation; statistics and data collection; women and minorities in higher education; philanthropy; copyrights and patents; youth policy; veterans; military education; handicapped in higher education; access; postal rates; energy; prescribed personnel practices; privacy; testing; athletics; research directions; and government organization.

D. Transnational: intellectual interchange; freedom of exchange; international studies and education; research; science and technology transfer; such crosscutting commitments as ideology, religion, ethnicity, and language; international law and organizations; and recognition and status.

III. INSTITUTIONS

A. U.S. Agencies: Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education (also for Legislation and Planning and Evaluation) of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (DHEW); Education Division of DHEW including the Office of Education,

National Institute of Education, Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, National Center for Education Statistics, and Institute for Museum Services; National Science Foundation; National Research Council; National Science Board; Office of Management and Budget; Office of Science and Technology; U.S. Department of Defense; Veterans Administration; National Endowment for Humanities and the Arts; National Institutes of Health; U.S. Department of Agriculture; Federal Communications Commission; National Labor Relations Board; Federal Interagency Committee on Education; and 439 separate Federal programs on higher education by one count,⁵ which are addressed to 15 target populations in 27 major content areas.⁶

B. U.S. Legislation: Morrill Land Grant Act (1862); Servicemen's Readjustment Act (GI Bill of Rights) (1944); National Science Foundation (1950); Housing Act (1950); National Defense Education Act (1958); Higher Education Facilities Act (1963); Economic Opportunity Act (1964); Civil Rights Act (1964); Higher Education Act (1965); National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities (1965); Veterans Readjustment Benefits Act (1966); Education Amendments of 1972; and projected Higher Education Amendments of 1979.⁷

C. State and Regional Agencies: state higher education systems offices; state postsecondary education commissions (under Section 1202 of the Education Amendments of 1972); state higher education facilities commissions; National Council of State Directors of Community/Junior Colleges; Education Commission of the States; Southern Regional Education Board; Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education; New England Board of Higher Education; and consortia of institutions, including 114 formal ones nation-wide (during 1975-76 with three or more members), such as the Academic Affairs Conference of Midwestern Universities, Atlanta University Center, Auraria Higher Education Center, Christian College Consortium, The Claremont Colleges, Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area, Five Colleges, Great Lakes Colleges Association, Midwest Universities Consortium for International

Activities, Settlement Institutions of Appalachia, Union for Experimenting Colleges and Universities, and University of Mid-America.⁸

D. Associations: Members of the Washington Higher Education Secretariat, including American Association for Higher Education; American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education; American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers; American Association of Community and Junior Colleges; American Association of University Professors; American Association of State Colleges and Universities; American Council on Education; Association of American Colleges; Association of American Universities; Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges; Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities; Council for Advancement and Support of Education; Council of Graduate Schools in the United States; Council on Postsecondary Accreditation; Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges; National Association of College and University Attorneys; National Association of College and University Business Officers; National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities; National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges; Department of Colleges and Universities of the National Catholic Educational Association. Other especially important associations include the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Library Association, Association of American Law Schools, Association of American Medical Colleges, Association of Independent Colleges and Schools, and Association of Urban Education (also see section III-I below).

E. University and Research Centers: Claremont University Center; College of William and Mary; Columbia University; Cornell University; New York University; Stanford University; State University of New York at Buffalo; University of California at Berkeley and Los Angeles; University of Chicago; University of Colorado, University of Denver; University of Illinois; University of Kentucky; University of Michigan; University of Minnesota; University of Oklahoma; University of Southern California; University of Virginia; and the University of Washington are among 67 institutions which offer a doctoral specialization in higher education.⁹ Other centers include Brookings Institution; Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education; College Entrance Examination Board; Education Commission of the States; Higher Education Research Institute (Los Angeles); Joseph Froomking, Inc.; National Center for Higher Education Management Systems; Educational Testing Service; National Foundation for the Improvement of Education (NEA); Policy Analysis Service of the American Council on Education; and Academy for Educational Development.

F. Unions: American Association of University Professors; American Federation of Teachers; and the National Education Association of the United States.

G. International Organizations: Agency for International Development; American Council of Learned Societies; Association of Commonwealth Universities; Association of Universities Partially or Entirely of the French Language; Council on the International Exchange of Scholars; International Association for the Advancement of Educational Research; International Association of Universities; International Council for Educational Development; the Division of International Education Relations of the American Council on Education; International Social Science Council; International Studies Association; Institute of International Education; Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities, Inc.; Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development; Overseas Development Council; Overseas Liaison Committee of the American Council on Education; Society for International Development; Swedish Academy and related organizations for the Nobel Prizes; United Nations University; United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization; U.S. International Communications Agency; World Bank; and transnational disciplinary societies and bi-lateral and multi-lateral agreements on scientific, educational, and cultural cooperation and exchange.

H. Special Study Groups: Commission on Higher Education (1946); Carnegie Commission on Higher Education (1967-1974); President's Task Force on Higher Education /on Priorities in Higher Education/ ("Hester Report") (1970); Task Force on Higher Education (Newman Task Force) (1971 and 1973); Committee for Economic Development (1973); Commission on Academic Tenure in Higher Education (1973); Commission on Non-Traditional Study (1973); National Board on Graduate Education (1973); National Commission on the Financing of Postsecondary Education (1973); Special Task Force to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare /on Work in America/ (1973); and Sloan Commission on Higher Education and Government (1977-).

I. Other Organizations: Accrediting Commission for Community and Junior Colleges; Adult Education Association of the U.S.; American Association of School Administrators; American College Testing Program; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees; American Vocational Association; AFL/CIO /union/; Association of Research Libraries; Association for the Study of Higher Education; College Entrance Examination Board; Council of Chief State School Officers; Council on Exceptional Children; (Emergency) Committee for Full-Funding of Education Programs; Educational Testing Service; Ford Foundation; Government Relations Luncheon Group; Institute for Services to Education; Lilly Endowment, Inc.; A.W. Mellon Foundation; Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; John Minter and Associates, Inc.; National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education; National Association of Educational Broadcasters; National Audio-Visual Association; National Center for Higher Education; National Committee for Citizens in Education; National Farmers Union; National School Boards Association; National Student Association; National Student Lobby; National University Extension Association; New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc. (Commission on Institutions of Higher Education); New York State Education Department; North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (Commission on Institutions of Higher Education);

Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges; Project on Education and Status of Women; Rockefeller Foundation; Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (Commission on Colleges); Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association; United Negro College Fund, Inc.; Washington Higher Education Group; Western Association of Schools and Colleges; Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; and W.K. Kellogg Foundation. The number of U.S. educational organizations is difficult to estimate because many may be categorized as cultural, scientific, health, public affairs, or otherwise related. One listing of national educational organizations, though, does include 886 groups.¹⁰

IV. BACKGROUND READING

A. Institutional: Alexander W. Astin, Four Critical Years, Effects of Colleges on Beliefs, Attitudes, and Knowledge (Jossey-Bass, 1977); Frederick Balderson, Managing Today's University (Jossey-Bass, 1974); J. Victor Baldridge, ed., Academic Governance: Research on Institutional Politics and Decision-Making (McCutchen, 1971); J. Victor Baldridge, et al, Policy Making and Effective Leadership (Jossey-Bass, 1978); Peter M. Blau, The Organization of Academic Work (John Wiley, 1973); Howard R. Bowen, Investment in Learning: The Individual and the Social Value of American Higher Education (Jossey-Bass, 1977); Howard R. Bowen and John W. Minter, Private Higher Education (Association of American Colleges, 1973); Earl Cheit, The New Depression in Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1971 and 1973); Michael D. Cohen and James G. March, Leadership and Ambiguity: The American College President (McGraw-Hill, 1973); John J. Corson, The Governance of Colleges and Universities (McGraw-Hill, 1975); Leon D. Epstein, Governing the University (Jossey-Bass, 1974); Kenneth E. Eble, The Art of Administration (Jossey-Bass, 1978); Joseph William Garbarino and Bill Aussieker, Faculty Bargaining: Change and Conflict (McGraw-Hill, 1975); Roger W. Heyns, ed., Leadership for Higher Education: The Campus View (American Council on Education, 1977); Clark Kerr, The Uses of the University (Harvard University, 1963); Everett Carl Ladd, Jr. and Seymour Martin Lipset, The Divided Academy: Professors and Politics (McGraw-Hill, 1975); Eugene C. Lee and Frank M. Bowen, Managing Multicampus Systems: Effective Administration in an Unsteady State (Jossey-Bass, 1975); Dean E. McHenry and Associates, Academic Departments: Problems, Variations and Alternatives (Jossey-Bass, 1976); John D. Millett, The Academic Community: An Essay on Organization (McGraw-Hill, 1962); John D. Millett, New Structures of Campus Power (Jossey-Bass, 1978); Kenneth P. Mortimer and T.R. McConnell, Sharing Authority Effectively (Jossey-Bass, 1979); John Nason, Presidential Search and Selection (Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges, 1979); Morton A. Raud, The Trusteeship of Colleges and Universities (McGraw-Hill, 1969); Barry M. Richman and Richard N. Farmer, Leadership, Goals and Power in Higher Education (Jossey-Bass, 1974); Donald E. Walker, The Effective Administrator (Jossey-Bass, 1979); and Clyde J. Wingfield, ed., The American University: A Public Administration Perspective (Southern Methodist University, 1970).

B. State Policy: Robert O. Berdahl, Statewide Coordination of Higher Education (American Council on Education, 1971); Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, The Capitol and the Campus: State Responsibility for Post-Secondary Education (McGraw-Hill, 1971); Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, The State and Higher Education: A Proud Past and a Vital Future (Jossey-Bass, 1976); Education Commission of the States, The States and Higher Education (Education Commission of the States, 1975); Heinz Eulau and Harold Quinley, State Officials and Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1970); D. Kent Halstead, Statewide Planning in Higher Education (U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1974); A.E. Dick Howard, State Aid to Private Higher Education (Michie, 1977); Robert H. Kroepsche, ed., Legislative Decision-Making in Higher Education (Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education, 1972); Eugene C. Lee and Frank M. Bowen, The Multicampus University: A Study of Academic Governance (McGraw-Hill, 1971); John D. Millett, Politics and Higher Education (University of Alabama, 1974); James Dunlap Nowlan, The Politics of Higher Education: Lawmakers and the Academy in Illinois (University of Illinois, 1976); Michael D. Usdan, David Minar, and Edward Hurwitz, Education and State Politics (Teachers College, 1969); and Harmon Ziegler and Karl F. Johnson, The Politics of Education in the States (Bobbs-Merrill, 1972).

C. National Policy: The American Assembly, The Federal Government and Higher Education (Prentice-Hall, 1960); American Association of State College and Universities and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, Recommendations for National Action Affecting Higher Education (AASCU and NASULGC, 1968); "American Higher Education: Toward an Uncertain Future," Daedalus (I, Fall, 1974 and II, Winter, 1975); Kenneth H. Ashworth, Scholars and Statesmen (Jossey-Bass, 1972); Association of American Universities, The Federal Financing of Higher Education (AAU, 1968); Homer D. Babbidge, Jr. and Robert M. Rosenzweig, The Federal Interest in Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1962); Stephen K. Bailey and Edith K. Mosher, ESEA: The Office of Education Administers a Law (Syracuse University, 1968); Stephen K. Bailey, Education Interest Groups in the Nation's Capital (American Council on Education, 1975); John S. Brubacher, The Courts and Higher Education (Jossey-Bass, 1971); John S. Brubacher and Willis Rudy, Higher Education in Transition: A History of American Colleges and Universities, 1936-1968 (Harper and Row, 1968); Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, Quality and Equality: New Levels of Federal Responsibility for Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1968); Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, The Federal Role in Postsecondary Education: Unfinished Business, 1975-1980 (Jossey-Bass, 1975); Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, More than Survival: Prospects for Higher Education in a Period of Uncertainty (Jossey-Bass, 1975); James Bryant

Conant, Shaping Educational Policy (McGraw-Hill, 1964); Clifton Conrad and Joseph Cosand, The Implications of Federal Education Policy (ERIC, 1976); Charles G. Dobbins, ed., Higher Education and the Federal Government (American Council on Education, 1963); W. Todd Furniss and David P. Gardner, Higher Education and Government (American Council on Education, 1979); Lawrence R. Gladieux and Thomas R. Wolfanin, Congress and the College: The National Politics of Higher Education (Lexington, 1976); Algo D. Henderson and Jean Glidden Henderson, Higher Education in America: Problems, Priorities and Prospects (Jossey-Bass, 1974); Richard Hofstadter, Anti-Intellectualism in America (Knopf, 1964); Richard Hofstadter and Walter P. Metzger, The Development of Academic Freedom in the United States (Columbia University, 1955); John F. Hughes, ed., Education and the State (American Council on Education, 1975); Frank J. Munger and Richard P. Fenno, Jr., National Politics and Federal Aid to Education (Syracuse University, 1962); Richard Perlman, The Economics of Education (McGraw-Hill, 1973); C.A. Quattlebaum, Federal Educational Policies, Programs, and Proposals (Legislative Reference Service, 1968); George N. Rainsford, Congress and Higher Education in the Nineteenth Century (University of Tennessee, 1972); Frederick Seitz, et al, eds., Science, Government, and the University (University of Washington, 1966); Norman C. Thomas, Education in National Politics (McKay, 1975); Sidney W. Tiedt, The Role of the Federal Government in Education (Oxford University, 1966); and Meyer Weinberg, A Chance to Learn: The History of Race and Education in the United States (Cambridge University, 1977).

D. Transnational: Eric Ashby, Universities: British, Indian, African—A Study in the Ecology of Higher Education (Harvard University, 1966); Robert O. Berdahl and George Altomare, Comparative Higher Education: Sources of Information (International Council for Educational Development, 1972); Barbara B. Burn, et al,

Higher Education in Nine Countries (McGraw-Hill, 1971); Abraham Flexner, Universities: American, English, German (Harvard University, 1968) A.H. Halsey and M.A. Trow, The British Academics (Harvard University Press, 1971); International Council for Educational Development, Internationalizing Higher Education: A United States Approach (International Council for Educational Development, 1974); International Education Project, Education for Global Interdependence (American Council on Education, 1975); Ian A. McLaren, Education in a Small Democracy: New Zealand (Routledge, 1974); Asa S. Knowles, ed., International Encyclopedia of Education (Jossey-Bass, 1978); Overseas Liaison Committee, International Directory for Educational Liaison (American Council on Education, 1973); Seth Spaulding and Michael J. Flack, The World's Students in the United States (Praeger, 1976); and UNESCO, World Guide to Higher Education (Bowker, 1976).

E. Periodicals: AAUP Bulletin (American Association of University Professors); ACB Reports (Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges); Bulletin (International Association of Universities); Change (Change Magazine Press); The Chronicle of Higher Education (Editorial Projects for Education); Circular Newsletter of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC); Comparative Education (Pergamon Press); Educational Record (American Council on Education); Harvard Education Review (Harvard University); Higher Education and National Affairs (American Council on Education); Higher Education Daily (Capitol Publications, Inc.); Higher Education in Europe (UNESCO); and International Review of Education (UNESCO Institute of Education).

F. Bibliographies: Philip G. Altbach, Comparative Higher Education Abroad: Bibliography and Analysis (Interbook, 1976); Robert J. Barak, The State and Higher Education: A Bibliography of the Literature up to 1972 (ERIC, 1972);

Current Index to Journals in Education (CCM Information Corporation); Current Documents in Higher Education: A Bibliography (Educational Resources Information Center); Paul L. Dressel and Sally B. Pratt, eds., The World of Higher Education (Jossey-Bass, 1971); Education Administration Abstracts (University Council for Educational Administration); Education Index (The H.W. Wilson Company); G.S. Harman, The Politics of Education: A Bibliographic Guide (Crane, Russak, and Company, 1974); Barry T. Klein, ed., Guide to American Educational Directories (Todd Publications, 1976); Research in Education (Educational Resources Information Center); Selected Bibliography in Higher Education (Center for the Study of Higher Education, The Pennsylvania State University, 1972); and Thomas M. Stauffer, A Reference Guide to Important Books for Academic Administrators and Reference Guide to Directories, Bibliographies, and Information Sources of Interest to Academic Administrators in American Higher Education (American Council on Education, 1978).

G. Data Sources: Digest of Educational Statistics (National Center for Education Statistics, annually); Directory of State Leaders in Education (Education Commission of the States, annually); Education Directory: College and Universities (U.S. Office of Education, annually); Education Directory: Educational Associations (U.S. Office of Education, annually); Fact Book on Higher Education (American Council on Education, quarterly); Higher Education Indicators (American Council on Education, annually); and A Reference Guide to Postsecondary Education Data Sources (National Center for Higher Education Management Systems, 1975).

H. Special Reports: Association of American Colleges, A National Policy for Private Higher Education: The Report of a Task Force of the National Council of Independent Colleges and Universities (Association of American Colleges, 1975);

Howard R. Bowen, Financing Higher Education: The Current State of the Debate (Association of American Colleges, 1974); Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, Priorities for Action: Final Report of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1973); Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, Sponsored Research of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education (McGraw-Hill, 1975); Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education, The Federal Role in Postsecondary Education: Unfinished Business, 1975-1980 (Jossey-Bass, 1975); Committee for Economic Development, Research and Policy Committee, The Management and Financing of College: A Statement on National Policy (Committee on Economic Development, 1973); National Board on Graduate Education, Federal Policy Alternatives Toward Graduate Education (National Board on Graduate Education, 1973); National Commission on the Financing of Postsecondary Education, The Financing of Postsecondary Education (Government Printing Office, 1974); President's Task Force on Higher Education, Priorities in Higher Education (Government Printing Office, 1970); Task Force on Higher Education, Report on Higher Education (Government Printing Office, 1971 and 1973); U.S. Congress, Joint Economic Committee, The Economics and Financing of Higher Education in the United States (Government Printing Office, 1969); and U.S. President's Commission on Campus Unrest, Campus Unrest (Government Printing Office, 1970).

I. Other: James Edward Bruno, Educational Policy Analysis: A Quantitative Approach (Crane, Russak, and Company, 1976); and Paul L. Dressel and Lewis B. Mayhew, Higher Education as a Field of Study (Jossey-Bass, 1974).

Footnotes

1. Carol Van Alstyne and Sharon Coldren, Financing Higher Education: Basic Facts Underlying Current Issues (Washington: American Federation of Teachers, 1977); Charles Andersen, ed., A Fact Book on Higher Education (Washington, D.C.: American Council on Education, 1976 and 1977; and Mary A. Golladay and Jay Noels, eds., The Condition of Education (Washington: National Center for Education Statistics, 1978).
2. Higher Education Directory, 1978-79: National Center for Higher Education and Affiliated Organizations (Washington: Council for the Advancement and Support of Education, 1978).
3. Graham T. Allison, Essence of Decision: Explaining the Cuban Missile Crisis (Boston: Little, Brown, and Company, 1971).
4. Samuel K. Cove and Carol Everly Floyd, "Research on Higher Administration and Policy," Public Administration Review, XXXV(1) (January/February, 1975), pp. 111-118.
5. Robert C. Andringa, "The View from the Hill," Change, VIII (April, 1976), pp. 26-29.
6. Communication from Harold K. Hodgkinson, former director of the National Institute of Education, May 4, 1977.
7. Charles B. Saunders, Jr., "A Higher Education Agenda for the 90th Congress," Educational Record, LX (Winter, 1979), pp. 103-121.
8. Lewis D. Patterson, "Consortia of Institutions of Higher Education," Education Directory: Colleges and Universities, 1975-76 (DHEW, 1976), pp. 523-533.
9. Communication from Professor Paul L. Dressell, Michigan State University, April 18, 1974.
10. Mary Wilson Pair, ed., Encyclopedia of Associations (Detroit: Gale Research Company, 1978), pp. 425-510.